

CAMPANIA

Local grape varieties such as Falanghina, Fiano, Greco and Aglianico are regaining popularity in a region that has been making wine for centuries and yet has nothing like the reputation of more popular wine regions. This means there are really good wines to be had for reasonable prices.

CANTINA DI SOLOPACA

One of Campania's oldest cooperatives. The vineyards are located in the historical hilly region of Sannio Doc where they make the Solopaca DOC. They use predominately Falanghina, Greco and Fiano for whites and Aglianico for reds.
